

British Association of Neuroscience Nurses

The British Association of Neuroscience Nurses provides a voice for neuroscience nurses working within varying clinical and community settings, where political, personal and professional views can be shared and heard.

BANN has three main aims: -

To promote the highest standards of care within the speciality

To encourage and give the opportunity for exchange of ideas in this country and abroad

To encourage interest and awareness of the special needs of neuroscience patients

Neuroscience nursing needs a voice. Represent yourself, your patients and your specialty.
